Singer-songwriter Heather Luckhart's upcoming album "Make It Through" is a strong musical debut from a rising female Canadian Blues Artist.

"Let It Out Like" is Luckhart's fourth and final single from her forthcoming LP, to be released January 2023. This frangible, vulnerable yet optimistic song is very sing-along-able. It features the Juno-nominated Alison Young on saxophone, crossing coffee-house, singer-songwriter, blue-eyed soul, blues, and jazz-folk genres.

Canadian singer-songwriter Heather Luckhart has just won a showcase position at Memphis' international Blues challenge via a Toronto Blues Society competition and continues to dazzle audiences in Toronto.

Luckhart's connection to the blues is one she has earned, and she brings her life experiences and endurance into every musical moment. "Make It Through," to be released in late 2022, is a blues album with gospel, rock and jazz influences. A collection of ten original tracks and two arrangements of classic standards centred around perseverance and strength. Heather's music is vulnerable but strong, a message of support to others and a call to action to herself. Luckhart's fiery spirit has helped her Make It Through life's challenges, and she is proud to share that spirit in this album, recorded despite many obstacles during the pandemic.

Luckhart has a passion for community that is evident through her award-winning social media influencer status: 44.5K followers on Instagram, her 2021 People's Choice award winner, NOW Magazine's Best Account, her contributions to Canada Rocks Media and SEEROCKLIVE Magazine, and her monthly blues jam that was hosted at Mandy's Bistro in Toronto. Until now, she has achieved many musical collaborations and feature-focused performances and worked in mentorship programs with at-risk youth. Welcome Luckhart to the centre stage as a solo recording artist rooted in the blues traditions.
